Misc:

Lost/Misplaced Items: None

Broken Items: None

Crossover Required: Yes

Special Problem Descriptions: None

Due to the extreme angle of the rake, it is highly recommended you have it in rehearsal.

It is of note that the show was vastly simplified from the 2002 version, in regards to the rail cues. The number of pieces in each scene was cut down in order to streamline and clean the moves from one scene to another.

Unusual safety concerns in this production: cast awareness of overhead flying pieces, running light on each set of escape stairs (stairs are difficult to see when onstage and heading towards them), repetitive injuries from time spent on rake, concern over slippery shoes and the plastic tiles covering the floor.

TILE NOTE: the plastic tiles are NOT very slippery. Regular shoe rubberization is sufficient to prevent slips. Bare feet are not a problem on the tiles. The tiles have very small square openings, there is no danger of shoes falling through them. The tiles do cause excess wear/tear on all shoes in the show.
